CHANCE TO LOOT ABSENTEES' ESTATES

REMARKABLE PROVISIONS OF THE LOCAL STATUTES REVEALED IN A GARNISHEE CASE BEFORE JUDGE ROBINSON—A LAW WHICH ALL PARTIES ADMIT IS CONTRARY TO COMMON SENSE DISCUSSED IN COURT TODAY.

Section 2114 of the Revised Laws of Hawaii is absurd, contrary to common sense and offers opportunities for the grossest injustices, but it was agreed in Judge Robinson's court this morning that it might have to be enforced, and Attorney Thayer offered to produce a long list of authorities in favor of it. This was after the court had declared that it was "conceded" that the section was "contrary to common sense." The matter of enforcing it or declaring it unconstitutional is to be submitted on briefs.

The discussion arose in the small garnishee suit of L. M. Chow, doing business under the firm name of Wong Mow, against the Hammond Milling Company of Oregon, and Gonsalves & Company, garnishees, the amount involved being $175. A judgment against the garnishees was obtained in the district court and this morning Attorney Douthitt moved to have it set aside because the Hammond Mill Company, the defendant in the case, had never been served with the complaint. It appeared that the suit had been brought and, on service on the garnishee only, a judgment had been obtained, and it also appeared that the statute of Hawaii provided for exactly this method of procedure.

"The statute seems to authorize the method you have followed," said Judge Robinson after Thayer had argued his side of it, "but it is certainly a most remarkable procedure."

Douthitt declared that the law was manifestly unconstitutional. "If a man is out of the Territory and has money here," he said, "anyone can bring a suit against him and a garnishee, and get his money or property without him knowing anything about the matter at all. Such a law is utterly absurd and unconstitutional."

Thayer admitted that the proposition was a queer one, but said it was what the statute set forth, and that he could not do anything but follow the statute.

A United States Supreme Court authority was quoted by both sides. Judge Robinson suggested that the section offered a fine chance for muleting the estates of persons who had property here and lived elsewhere. All that would be necessary would be collusion between the holder of the property and some one else, and a suit could be brought and the property obtained without the owner ever hearing of the case. The judge thought this very strange law.

It was finally agreed that the authorities should be submitted in briefs, and with his proviso the evidence was taken and the case submitted. The section in question is one which describes the method to be followed in suing and garnisheeing absent persons or companies. It appears to have left out any means of furnishing notice to the person sued.

End Of The Cook And The Housemaid's Tryst

FROM THE SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE.

The housemaid who basked in the sun on the slopes of the Presidio reservation and lived in a tent at the Government's expense will have to seek other fields and pastures new in which to pitch her tent, and enjoy the climate.

General Greely has acted. Coming to the aid of the homes that are cookless and maidless, he has ordered the cooks and the maids forthwith to leave the Presidio. On Friday the General reported to the finance committee that there were cooks in the camp. Cooks who did nothing but flirt with his soldiers and enjoy a summer outing at the expense of Dr. Devine and the relief fund.

Every one had wondered where the cooks had gone. They had been lost since the fire. General Greely knew where they were, and has told it. More than that, he has ordered that they leave the sunny slopes of the Presidio and go forth again into the cold world to earn their living as they did before the fire.

Monday is the day set for the driving out of the cooks and housemaids from this new paradise. That none escaped, it is ordered that every camper, whether cook or otherwise, shall leave the Government reservation and earn his or her bread by the sweat of his or her brow.

It all happened this way. General Greely wrote a letter to Dr. Devine, who in turn wrote to Major Gaston. Then Major Gaston sent both letters to Colonel Morris. It seemed a long chain, but there was no chance of a break. The fate of the cook was sealed. Colonel Morris went to General Greely and the affair, having thus completed the circle of diplomacy, the hour of action arrived, and the order was made.

The corporals of the Twenty-second Infantry may not be an exact reproduction of the angel with the flaming sword, but the cooks will leave the Presidio.

Major Gaston was occupied yesterday in making more room at the Harbor View camp. In the kindness of his heart he prepared a place of refuge for the cooks and the housemaids, and—unkindest cut of all—the Desmond soup kitchen there will be enlarged for their benefit.

IROQUOIS DUMPED STORES OVERBOARD

UNITED STATES VESSEL MUST HAVE ENCOUNTERED ROUGH WEATHER ON HER TRIP.

The U. S. Iroquois evidently encountered rough weather on her recent trip to Midway from Honolulu, or else something was wrong with the various stores she had aboard as deck load. A cablegram was received at the Naval Station to the effect that the vessel had to dump all of the stores on deck overboard on account of their being damaged. No details as to the cause of their being damaged were stated. It is not improbable that the vessel ran into some heavy seas. It seems hardly probable that the stores aboard spoiled from any other cause.

MOVING PICTURES OF HAWAII

Robert K. Bonine returned this morning from Maui and Hawaii where he has been engaged for the past six weeks in taking moving pictures of the scenes to be found there for the Edison Moving Picture Company.

Mr. Bonine speaks highly of the encouragement he received from the people with whom he came in contact on the trip and of their assistance in helping him to secure the best views.

Mr. Bonine continued "I went from here to view the opening of the Kohala ditch and obtained pictures of the passengers landing from the Kinau. Then to the Union station where I obtained a picture of the arrival of the Mahukona Express. I also obtained a fine view of the crowds leaving the opening of the ditch. In this picture is Secretary Atkinson of the Territory and Col. Sam Parker.

"I then went to the Kohala plantation where pictures of oxen drawing cane to the mill was obtained. Then to Waimea where I obtained pictures of all of the different features of the sheep ranch. I have pictures of the sheep being sheared, being dipped and being put through the chutes as well as in other phases of their existence.

"Then I reached Hilo. There C. C. Kennedy assisted me in obtaining all kinds of scenes relative to the raising of cane and its course through the mill. Also the volcano and all of the attending scenes. On the Fourth there was a Japanese wrestling match and I have a great picture of it.

"I also went to Maui and visited the crater there. Had a pleasant trip and a great time. I obtained some fine pictures of Kahului.

"I am booked to leave here on the Korea August 14. Before that time I expect to get pictures of a pa-u ride and also of the beach at Waikiki. Then I am to have a special car on the front of an engine and go for a ride over the Oahu Railroad and take views as also of the different streets about town."

BISHOP WILLIS BUILDS NEW CHURCH

HE AND HIS FOLLOWERS ERECTING A NEW EDIFICE IN THE CAPITAL OF TONGA.

Letters from Tonga received by the Sonoma yesterday are to the effect that Bishop Willis and his followers are building a larger church edifice than that in which they have worshipped since the Bishop went there nearly four years ago. The old church edifice will be used as a school.

The Tongan Parliament which was in session for two weeks, rejected an act providing for turning over the schools of the kingdom to the several churches represented there.

An act which was passed, was one repealing the act that required the natives to dismount and salute before chiefs.

WHITNEY FOR CIRCUIT JUDGESHIP

FORMER DISTRICT MAGISTRATE MAY BE SUCCESSOR OF CIRCUIT JUDGE DE BOLT.

William L. Whitney is being much talked of among attorneys for circuit judge, and if Judge De Bolt does not succeed himself it is not at all unlikely that Whitney will be named for the place. De Bolt's term expires next January, when his four years' commission will expire.

It is not known yet whether he will seek another term, but the matter has been a good deal discussed, for attorneys are naturally interested in who will be the judges.

Judge De Bolt stated, when asked recently that he had not made up his mind and had not given much consideration to the matter, also that his attitude would probably be the same as it was before, which means that he thinks the office should seek the man, and wouldn't make a campaign for himself.

Whitney has been district magistrate for two years and has made a fine record. In fact he seems to be quite fond of delving deeply into legal questions and writes some able legal opinions. Hence his friends have been suggesting that he ought to be a circuit judge, in which capacity he would have a chance to do all the legal digging he wanted to.

There is some talk among the bar of opposition to De Bolt as a candidate for another term, but it is not thought that there would be any real opposition. The endorsement of the Bar Association, it is thought, would have a very large influence over the appointment.
